→ Gamut Collaborative ERP

Gamut allows companies to extend the power of its ERP solutions by integrating it with the inherent advantages of the Internet. This makes it possible to provide a B2C interface that can relate to consumer needs. As well as providing a B2B framework that can allow Supply Chain Management with ease.

B2C

With matrixmart.com, companies can have a common storefront for their products on the Web. Simply upload your product information to the storefront with online postings of items along with individual product images. And your customers can browse through your inventory and choose at their leisure.

Matrix B2C offers a number of benefits:

- It allows posting of sales transactions as they take place. This updates your inventory level on a real-time basis.
- It provides information regarding products, which are available to promise. This ensures that customer orders are always honoured.
- In case, an item is ordered which is unavailable, the sales order is forwarded automatically to the manufacturing process.
- Customers can even track the delivery position of ordered items.

B2B

With ebusiness-matrix.com, it is possible to extend the ERP solutions to include vendors. Each vendor is provided with an username and password. This allows a vendor to obtain information about your company requirements for the products for which the vendor is registered.

Matrix B2B offers a number of benefits:

- Information regarding vendors' credit days, price-list and discounts are updated from the ERP system and are available for validation on the Net.
- Enquiries for product requirements are posted on the Net.
- Vendors can quote for required products against the enquiry directly through the Net.
- Your company can process purchase orders on the basis of quotations received and can intimate vendors directly.
- Vendor can update the despatch schedule, which allows you to stay up-to-date on your pipeline stock.
